Yetta

Written & Illustrated by
Bill Greenberg

Woosh! Flower petals are plopping all over stepdad, stepbrother, step baby, step robot, step chicken, and stepladder again. Yetta is so hyper that she's ruining everything with her jumping, running, twisting, singing, dancing and laughing in the middle of a wedding?

Seeing flower petals in a basket gave the author an idea; which led to writing an entire story. Here's a fun way for you to practice writing too.

Put a bunch of objects in a box, bowl or basket. Reach in and take out one object at a time. When four things have been removed; see if you can make up a story about all four objects. Write down or draw pictures to share your story. Make up another story with four different objects if you have time.

Maybe your story will become a book someday!
